BUFFALO HILL

A successful dance was held at Buffalo School last Friday. It was favored with good music and fine weather, which makes a good combination for a dance. The next dance will be announced at a later date.

Frank Wyatt returned from his hunting trip last Saturday, well supplied with venison, which means that he was quite comfortable, while the deer was unfortunate.

Mrs. Bucher, of Breton, Alta., sister of Mrs. Goldthorpe, has been visiting and renewing old acquaintances in the district.

Mrs. J. R. Wyatt, who is in the Vulcan Hospital, is slightly improving but progress is slow.

Mr. Frank McInally and daughters, Misses Teresa and Elsie, left last weekend for Delburne where they will visit with relatives for a few days.

Miss Violet Earl is visiting at the Frank McInally home for a few days.

The ladies of the Buffalo Hill Community, on Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 24th, held a shower at the home of Mrs. M. McInally in honor of Mrs. Forrest C. House, who was the recipient of many lovely and useful gifts.

After an interesting contest, Miss Marjorie Steiner and Master Raymond House, dressed as bride and groom, brought in the gifts, following which a dainty lunch was served.

An enjoyable time was had by all.

Brethren Church Notes

Rev. Mr. Buntain will again have charge of the services on Sunday, Dec. 6. At the morning service he will speak on "The Mission of the Holy Spirit." In the evening his theme will be "The Challenge of Faith. At the evening services the Young People will also present the play "Out of the Shadows."

QUEENSTOWN ITEMS

On Thursday, Nov. 19th a shower was held at the home of Mrs. McLaughlin in honor of Miss Evelyn Blower, when 65 ladies and girls were present. A well arranged program was followed at which Mrs. J. Taylor and Miss Verma McLaughlin, carried in a decorated basket containing many useful and beautiful gifts which showed the popularity of the bride-elect, who was raised in this district. This was undoubtedly the outstanding event of its kind ever held in Queenstown and was brought to a close with a dainty lunch.

We are sorry to hear that Mr. Lawther is in Calgary receiving treatment for his knee.

Mrs. Payne's many friends will regret to hear that she is on the sick list again.

Mrs. Mallett and Miss Dorothy are also under the weather.

Two carloads of Queenstown items journeyed to Arrowwood on Thursday to hear Rev. E. G. Hinsell speak on Social Credit.

The Social Credit Bridge Party which was postponed from Nov. 26 to Nov. 28, was well attended.

We regret to report that Mrs. White broke her arm last Sunday and is now resting in the Holy Cross Hospital.

RID—BLOWER

A quiet but pretty wedding took place in Knox United Church, Calgary, on Thurs., Nov. 26, when Evelyn Blower was united in marriage to Mr. Chris Held. Rev. Dr. Kelloway officiating. The bride was attended by Mrs. Vera Blower, while Mr. G. Williams of Shouldice attended the groom. Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served in the Club Cafe, after which the bride and groom proceeded to Banff on a honeymoon. On their return they will reside in the Miller house in Queenstown.

Surgery of the Seas

Dr. Adam N. Beattie, surgeon of the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Japan, and his ship's nurse, Miss Margaret Grant Allan, who are also married, performed two delicate operations during the ship's recent trip to the Far East. Hospitalized patients on the liner's huge turbines were still in need of surgery while Dr. Beattie, the ship's surgeon, performed the necessary operations. On the homeward trip, between Hong Kong and Shanghai, the London, Ont. doctor's ship was again called into play when a Chinese sailor started to vomit and die. Dr. Beattie, after a short time, had the sailor recovering well, the physician reported. Dr. Beattie, former house physician at Vancouver's St. Paul's hospital, is a graduate of University of Western Ontario and has been in the medical profession for 15 years. He was born in London, Ont., and educated at the University of Western Ontario. He has been in the Empress of Japan for the past three and a half years and previously was in the Empress of Russia. Dr. Beattie first went to sea in 1922 aboard the Canadian-American liner "Empress of Canada" out of Vancouver.

MILO NOTES

The Milo United Ladies Aid held a very delightful banquet at the home of Mrs. G. Venneland on Friday, Nov. 27th, when about 25 members enjoyed a sumptuous repeat, climaxing the activities of the Sunshine Friend Club for the year. Following the banquet a short program was enjoyed; after which Mrs. Mrs. J. C. Northcott on behalf of the members presented the hostess with a bouquet of flowers and also sent a bouquet to Mrs. Elder who was unable to attend.

The Annual meeting of the Milo Ladies Aid is to be held on Wednesday, Nov. 2nd at the home of Mrs. C. A. Northcott.

Mr. J. A. Chouvalas of the Bank of Nova Scotia staff left Saturday for Nanton where he will reside for two weeks.

C. W. Watt and C. Unschied left Monday for a few days hunting trip up the Highwood.

The Milo Badminton Club journeyed to Queenstown last Wednesday night for an inter-club tournament. Following an enjoyable evening of badminton a lovely lunch was served by Queenstown Club.

Don't forget the big Hockey Dance at Milo on Friday, Dec. 4th.

Social Credit Meeting

The above held in Phillips Hall with L. H. Irwin in the chair on Thursday last when the Rev. G. E. Hinsell, M.P., addressed a full packed house. From the interest apparent to all those who were present, it would surely seem that Social Credit is something but on the wane.

Mr. Hansell spoke for some two hours and everybody agreed there was not a dull moment. He touched on many subjects, and clearly illustrated each as he went along. Many interesting and educational events actually happening at Ottawa were related. In part he gave the audience, Mr. Blackmore's reception by the House, at the time he made the challenge to the Money Powers. He made it quite clear, that one could talk on any subject in Parliament without fear of much interruption until one spoke of taking over credit, or money, any mention of this would draw fire from both sides, and in no gentle manner. He clearly pointed out to the audience how the peoples credit was pledged first by the individual himself then by the municipality, next by the Provincial Government, and finally by the Dominion Govt. and the same credit, owned by the individual in the first place, had to pay the whole of these interest charges, is it any wonder you cannot begin to pay anything on the principal. All Social Credit proposes is that the individual use his own credit interest free. Do you not think that with that system in vogue, you could at least begin to get some place.

The business meeting dealt mainly with the play to be presented next Thursday. Owing to the play and the rush of the Christmas season the next meeting will be held early in January.

It'll be a big night in Mossleigh next Thursday when the Dramatic Club presents a comedy-drama in three acts, "Here Comes Charlie!" Its one thing for a young man of 24 to adopt a son before he's married. Its quite another to adopt Charlie. Its a complete evening's entertainment so be sure to come to see "Here Comes Charlie."

Mr. Wilfred Hagerdon spent the week-end in Calgary.

Misses Marjorie and Grace Strong were week-end visitors in Calgary.

Mr. and Mrs. Fredericksen visited in Champion over the week-end.

Visitors in Calgary on Monday were Mr. and Mrs. Pinkerton and Mr. McDonald.

A big wedding dance was held in Blind Creek School on Monday Nov. 30 in honor of Michael (Sunny) Scott and his charming bride. A chest of silverware was presented to the couple by their many friends.

The cast of the play "Here Comes Charlie" includes Miss Hazel Six, Miss Julia Short, Miss Jean Park, Miss Pat Macs, Mrs. B. Hart, Malcolm Taylor Lawrence, George Hollie, Miles Hart and Floyd Wark. Miss Marguerite Dawson is the director.

The Unemployed Youth Problem

A most important contribution to the problem of providing for the care of the unemployed will have been made if the youth division of the Federal Unemployment Commission under Alan Chambers is able to make feasible suggestions for the absorption of unemployed young men and women by industry.

Absorption by industry is mentioned as a sine qua non to the solution of this problem because it is only in this way that the problem of unemployed youth can be solved in the short term by a factory. All other plans can be nothing more than temporary palliatives.

This section of the Unemployment Commission has already made an interim report to the Federal government and it is reported that the cabinet at Ottawa, at the time of writing, is busily engaged considering the proposals contained in the report, presumably with a view to putting into effect as speedily as possible those suggestions which may be deemed timely and appropriate.

One of the most interesting and important recommendations in the report is a proposal for the establishment of a system of apprenticeship in co-operation with industrial concerns, and for more reasons than one, this may be regarded as one of the most satisfactory features of the proposals. An apprenticeship system of this kind would constitute a step in the direction of a permanent solution of the problem for those young men and women who would participate.

In the second place, an apprenticeship system would solve the problem which is involved in the matter of finding a suitable place of employment for this. This is a problem which is already looming on the industrial horizon and one which is likely to become acute within the next three or four years, in the opinion of observers. Unless industry takes the initiative, without government aid, the country is likely to witness, in the near future, the anomalous spectacle of thousands of young people ready and presuming to find a place of employment on the one hand, and on the other hand, industry clamoring for technically qualified help but unwilling to take those available because they are not experienced.

This pending situation leads one to speculate as to the efficiency of the training conducted in the public technical and vocational training schools of the country. Are they turning out the men for whom these establishments were founded with pride and with a sense of responsibility?

Some doubt may be expressed in the answer to this question in the light of present day experience. Parents find, after their sons have completed a course in these schools, that even where there are vacancies to be filled, the industry for which these lads have presumably been trained are not in a position to take them.

In illumination one might cite the automobile industry, an industry which has been reasonably busy, at least during the last couple of years, despite the depression and is showing increasing signs of vitality. Yet, when there are vacancies in automobile repair and service shops, foremen look around for men who have been previously engaged in the class of work and take them on, rather than the youths emerging from modern engineering classes in the technical schools because the former are experienced.

These foremen point out, and presumably with justification, that they cannot fill a vacancy in their shops with one of these young men because they would not charge that customer the time it would take them to do apprenticeship. They are drawing a low wage. Presumably this situation will exist until the last available experienced man has been absorbed and the industry is forced to take on youths turned by the technical schools with a completed course to their credit.

In the meantime, the vocational schools are turning out young men equipped to take on the work which they will at least be well qualified to do. It is also to be noted that they may take some other work which could be undertaken by those who had no vocational training.

All of which leads to the impression that some effort will have to be made in the vocational schools to conduct the work on a more practical basis and to make the results available, so that when youths leave to enter into the world of work, they will at least be well qualified as second or third year apprentices.

This may mean remodeling the classes in the vocational schools under changed conditions or other changes will have to be made in the system of training through a hook-up with industrial concerns.

It is also to be noted that industry itself has been short sighted in not having provided for future requirements by establishing a system of apprenticeship on its own account on a general scale.

The Greatest Inventor

A number of men were engaged in a discussion as to who won the greatest invention. One man, a Mr. Marconi, some said Morse. Finally a small Jew said: "Well, gentlemen, these were great peoples, but I tell you, the man who invented interest was no fool."

Horde Scared To Death

Scared to death by an elephant was the fate of a horse at Pangutuk, Quebec. Neles Ipson, master, came to town on Saturday to see a circus parade. His horse, catching its first sight of an elephant, reared and then fell back, dead. Ipson was severely injured.

To Keep Fruit Fresh

Lemons and oranges, and even green tomatoes, can be kept longer and stay fresher if you rub them with a couple of onions. This will keep a lot of prevent dry sand. The tomatoes must not touch each other. The tomatoes will ripen, so will need to be looked at every week.

Light Beam No One Sees

Pure African Air Makes Powerful Beacon Light Invisible

Every night a 3,000-watt beam of light is thrown into the sky at the South End of the Johannesburg, South Africa, by a 14,000,000-candle-power beacon—yet no one can see it!

The Johannesburg climate is to blame. It has beaten the engineers who set out to make the beam visible for 100 miles. The invisible apparatus in a hollow tower, 150 feet high and dominating the entire exhibition. This they called the Tower of Light.

The place has mislabeled. An spectator can see a cloudless night is the glow of the star, even when the light is fully switched on.

This paradox is caused by the purity of the African air. There is no humidity, no dust, no low clouds for the light to be reflected against—and light is invisible unless it is reflected, a scientist has explained to the exhibition committee.

The Tower of Light, the greatest light in South Africa cannot be seen. Durban Bluff lighthouse is only 3,000,000 candlepower and the Cape St. Francis light is 5,000,000 candlepower, but they fail to be seen at all.

It is not until around the 14,000-watt candlepower Johannesburg light could be turned down on to the exhibition grounds every one would be temporarily blinded. Similarly if an airplane would fly in the beam's path, it would be picked out in daylight clarity up to a height of 3,000 feet.

New Means of Livelihood

Poor In Japan Face Money From Cat Hunting

Japanese poor have turned to cat catching for a livelihood. They sell the cats to makers of musical instruments for manufacture of cat girdle strings.

With a fluttering sparrow as bait and a club for a weapon, the cat catcher starts his work at daybreak—when the toms and their mates return from a tour of the night spots.

The cat catcher puts a string attached to his sparrow's legs. The bird squeaks and attracts pussy who attacks. The cat jumps and breaks the string—club—thereby killing kitty's nine lives.

One hazard—the cat catcher is liable to be prosecuted for destruction of private property if caught with an animal belonging to someone else.

Nineteen Years Of Flying

Imperial Airways Commander Has Flown 1,500,000 Miles

Known as the "Captain Kettle of Tea," the Imperial Airways' commander, P. O. Jones, one of the senior commanders of Imperial Airways, has now spent an aggregate time in the air of just over a year and a half, and has piloted aircraft a distance equivalent to 932 journeys round the world.

He has completed 19 years of flying, during which time he has been in the air nearly 13,000 hours, has carried approximately 90,000 passengers without mishap, and has flown 1,500,000 miles. Mr. Jones is 58.

All Empire Wood

In a letter to the Times, the Chief Royal Engineer noted that as the whole of the timber in the Empire at Moorgate Station he goes on a trip through the Empire's forests. The whole of the sublatitudes is composed of beautiful panels of wood from Canada, Australia, South Africa, Newfoundland, Africa, India and Britain which are rich in timber wealth. But why, he asks, restrict this excellent idea to Moorgate Station?—Canada's, Weekly, London.

Woodpeckers do not carry grass and feathers to line their nests, as do many other birds, but they cannot be considered lazy. Flock birds work as diligently as woodpeckers in building their homes. They are the true masters of the bird world.

Thou Shalt Not Love

A NOVEL BY GEORGIA GRAIG

"I suppose it was inevitable, but well, I got jealous. How could I help it? Yes, jealous of every man you smiled at, forgetting that I was the one who told you to smile! I tried to tell you, I know! I have your tantalizing indifference, I tried, right from the start, to think of you—the very worst you. I didn't realize until I kissed you this afternoon that I loved you, that I have loved you from the beginning."

There was a roaring clamor in Starr's head, a strange throbbing like the beat of jungle tom-tom. In her veins, like the sound of those weird drums, the music of the world and all creation, that had been born when approaching an oasis. Uncanny, eerie, but so swooningly, deliriously filled with a strange delight.

Michael loved her! Michael was of her own Arabian Nights story loved her!

She tried to realize it, and realization brought a gushing wave of realization right from the inner depths of her being that she had never known before, or dreamed of. The first real thing in her life, especially in this swift, merry-go-round of crazy days and nights. Michael loved her! She had never known her own movement. She found her hands. She only knew of a sudden that he was holding them, crushing them in a strong grip that hurt and thrilled at the same time. He was begging; his voice was human.

"It's not too late, is it, Starr? Say it isn't! We'll go away from here. I have enough money. I don't think I ever want to hear of the word again. I'll never be able to talk to you and me, if you'll say so—just what I already have. We'll go some where where no one has ever heard of that wretched 'Play-Girl!' We'll start all over again, in a home of our own, where everybody will be different" There was an ache in his voice that petitioned: "Starr! Say something!"

In the darkness he lay motionless. What could he say? Michael loved her.

She had brought him to this. Yes, deliberately. The tantalizing indifference of which he spoke had been far from that, as was possible to be. It was part of a carefully-thought-out, elaborate campaign for vengeance against him and against Stephanie Dale. She had wanted to humiliate the proud Michael to the very depths, to make him laugh at him! And tossed her head at the overbearingly egotistic Stephanie Dale with all her Peter Stuyvesant ancestry. Sweet revenge!

She was a woman of courage, with a host of memories which completed its vicious panoply and landed squarely on Starr Ellison's own black head. Because she knew in this instant that she had been loved, too, that a despairing love of him had been the reason for most of the blackest moments of the days since she had known him. That realization overshadowed everything else, even the upbraid of seythe the Virgin Reaper which was always lurking in the shadows.

She loved him, and in all her for-

"I made a mistake, Michael. Has-tan! A terrible mistake. But I'm ready to make up for it—for anything by giving you my whole future to devoting it to myself, all the love of my full heart, to making you happy!"

"How bitter those words: 'If only'—"

Another voice suddenly cut through the darkness. A form was materializing, outlined against the lighted open windows. Lance Marlowe this time. Seeking a promised dance.

Starr had never been so glad to see anything in her life as she was then.
A grand, mad passion that she had never known before.

"The first sort of passion that Tut-Anu-Anu had known for the lovely priestess, Amu-Sun, so that he meant to bear her in time and eternity . . ."

Curving to the depths of his own soul, a soul which should even then turbo her into a mad passion, Starr Ellison understood now, in one brief, flashing moment that she had never understood before. A poignant pity for the distressed lovers in their lives in faraway Egypt, in the Queen-land of Valley of the Kings, swept over her.
Now she knew!

"It's nice to see I'm not forgotten, Lance! I'm dying to dance!"

Michael said swiftly, under his breath: "Don't go like this, Starr, without giving me an answer!"

She managed a stricken whisper.

"I can't tonight, Michael—honestly."

Given a few hours—say tonight, when Lance's party at the Sea Beach Casino? And then she died from him.

As the lights from the ball room struck Starr's face when he led her to the open window, Lance said to her:

"You look as if you'd been seeing that out there, Starr."

She murmured: "I have." And for once her painted lips were not smiling.

CHAPTER XI.

Starr was not certain she had been asleep at all when the small ivory telephone at the bedside rang. She was aware, vaguely, of the noise of the house, the sound of voices, the sound of the world, the world she had never known before, or dreamed of.

"Thou Shalt Not. Thou Shalt Not."
The sound of her life!

Again an imaginary parades before her eyes, the great heatlessness, the woman who could know Sturdy little men with clear gray eyes like Michael's; little girls who looked like Stephanie. The music of the sea, the sun, with a wild yearning dream of motherhood; she with her puffed few months left to live!

She strained against his enveloping arms.

"Michael, let me go!"

He held her closer, the confidence of a longing lover.

"Why should I let you go, when I've only found you?"

His lips were on her again—she was afraid that each of them would have avenged. She shrank. She shrank. She shrank.

Starr was awake on the instant.
She shrank, she shrank, the hulking
woman and the silk and lace of her luxurious bed.

"No, Michael. You can't! Didn't
I tell you? I'll be seeing you at Lance's party to-night."

Starr was awake on the instant.
She shrank, she shrank, the hulking
woman and the silk and lace of her
luxurious bed.

"No, Michael. You can't! Didn't
I tell you? I'll be seeing you at

Whose Savings Will be Next?

The money the people of this Province borrowed was used to provide them with houses, barns, and lands which now give them shelter and in which they do business. They have used them, and they continue to do so. Should they not recognize those who made it possible for them to have those things? Is it just that those who have saved, and who have been thrifty, to provide you with the facilities you possess should now be deprived of their savings?

Let those who look upon the lending companies as "big business" enquire whose money they have enjoyed. They will learn, as we shall tell them in one of the statements to follow,

If the citizens of Alberta pass by lightly the instances of this act, what is to prevent their own savings, their home, their business, their farms and other possessions being taken away from them? Can they feel safe in the enjoyment of their savings? Keep in mind that the confiscation of the property of others is only the first step leading to the confiscation of yours.

You have been told that our Government does not intend to confiscate. The Reduction and Settlement of Debts Act would confiscate the savings of hundreds of thousands of people. Whose savings will be taken next?

This statement is one of a series written by The Mortgage Loans Association of the Province of Alberta. The Association is composed of 34 member companies engaged in the business of financing homes and property by type Canadian. Its loan to citizens of Alberta amounts to some forty-five million dollars.

(The third statement in this series will be published in two weeks)

United Church Notes

Sunday, Dec. 6th, Topic: "The relative value of a man and a sheep."

While the world has changed greatly in its attitude to man since the beginning of the Christian era it is doubtful if any of us appreciate the value and dignity of the individual as Jesus did and as He taught us to do.

In our evaluation do we not all estimate a man's worth on ground of his material possessions or the position he occupies rather than on the basis of character and integrity? How does this correspond with Jesus method?

There will also be a talk to the children about a little fox called "Boldness."

Card Party and Dance at Mossleigh, Dec. 4

John Deere (Type E) Engine

Simply, Ruggedly Built. Fully Enclosed. Automatically Lubricated. Smooth in Operation and costs less to operate. It takes the work out of grinding feed, shelling corn, separating cream, pumping water, churning butter, operating the fanning mill and similar "muscle" jobs—and does it for only a few cents a day.

Built in 1/2, 3 and 6 horse power sizes to meet your requirements. Hand trucks available for all sizes.

Make the Type E a truly general-purpose engine.
